DISTRICT CONVENTION.

A Convention of the Democratic Conservative voters of the Fourth Congressional District will be held in the city of Raleigh on Tuesday the 13th day of June next, for the purpose of nominating a candidate for Congress and a Presidential Elector, and selecting two delegates to the St. Louis Convention. A full attendance is earnestly desired. Each county will be entitled to one vote for every one hundred votes and fractional part over fifty given for Merriam in 1872.

By order of the District Executive Committee.

H. A. LONDON, JR., Chairman.

March 31st, 1876.

Papers in the District will please copy.

HARMONY AT THE CENTRE.

We wish again to call the attention of the public and the press to the fact that the News promptly published the resolutions of the Democratic Executive Committee calling for harmony between the News and Sentinel, and expressed its willingness and desire to obey the resolutions if permitted. It has reiterated that wish. The Sentinel did not even publish the resolutions and has avowed no willingness to abide the expressed wish of the party. Its only reply was a more bitter and aggravated attack on this paper. Notwithstanding this, the News again reiterates its willingness and desire to abide the resolutions of the party. What says Mr. Turner and the Sentinel?

Babcock left the Court House at St. Louis a whitewashed man—whitewashed with the timid verdict of acquittal. But the public sense pronounced him guilty and he went forth a branded man. And now the testimony of one Bell shows that the popular sense was right. Babcock was guilty—not only so—he added to his guilt by the effort to destroy the evidences of his guilt, and that he had employed Bell to go to St. Louis and get access if possible to all evidence, telegrams, &c., and destroy them. The offences charged against him by the indictment only made him corrupt. The purpose to destroy the evidences against him makes him a felon, and it is the duty of the President to brand him as such by seeing that he is deprived of the offices of trust that he has been permitted to hold on to, unless indeed the President with his usual contempt of public opinion, will still thrust Babcock upon the country as his special favorite—and then, so much the worse for the President.

AMES.

The fact of the withdrawal of the articles of impeachment against this unrighteous carpet-bagger is already known. He resigned, and his resignation was accepted to avoid the delays and expenses of a trial. Ames goes down, the last of the class who rose into power, and expanded into tyrants of unquestioned will under a condition of things happily ended by the decision of the Supreme Court in the enforcement cases. That enforcement bill was itself the outgrowth of the prostration by military power of the native whites of the South, designed to give place and strength to the carpet-bag adventurers by securing absolute immunities for the blacks. Under the shadow of the enforcement acts, with its powers to call upon the general government whenever it found a pretext to do so, it needed not to cross the Atlantic to find examples of despotism.

There is always that spirit in the Anglo Saxon which chafes under oppression until it throws it off, and there is that inherent integrity in our Courts of justice which ultimately cleanses themselves from any stain which attaches to the ermine. The whites of the South were once prostrate. They are free again. The Supreme Court of the United States once willingly recorded the edicts of a semi-imperial government. That tribunal is again erect, and again confronts unblenchingly the frown of an imperious ruler. They recur again to those eternal fountains of truth and justice, and draw fresh inspiration from their pure waters. And with the Supreme Court again pure, its judgment clear and its decisions impartial, creatures like Ames must retire as the owls from the light of the sun. Ames and Bullock, Clayton and Holden have all gone down before the wrath of the people justified by the returned virtue and independence of the judiciary. Ames, probably is no worse than the rest, but his downfall is conspicuous, because it leaves the people of Mississippi thoroughly and absolutely free.

CANDIDATES.

It is the good fortune of the Democratic party that its fecundity of great names will give it a large field of choice, and that out of the field of choice any one selected would go before the people with a strength sufficient to secure an election. It is this very large number of eligible men that constitutes the embarrassment. Whom to choose, is the great difficulty. When chosen all difficulties vanish. For it is the equal good fortune of the party, that among the many names presented who have the greatest show of strength, there is none of that lively jealousy which would operate against the idea of the most cordial co-operation. We believe all will bow gracefully to the will of the convention, and all will go to work together to secure a Democratic victory.

The gubernatorial chair is well worthy the ambition of any man. It is the recognized reward of talent, of character and of service. It is the giddy pinnacle of State aspiration which the statesman is entitled to aim to reach. It is therefore not surprising that numbers strive to climb, or that partial friends put them forward as competitors in the race. But "as many run, but one wins the prize," so in this race there is but one to be chosen for the contest.

Our exchanges teem with recommendations. Frequent communications offer their suggestions, and by the time the convention is held, the party will have been put in possession of the names and merits of the candidates.

A writer from Newbern suggests the name of the Hon. Geo. Davis, of Wilmington. The suggestion is a natural one, for there are few gentlemen in the State of purer character, loftier intellect, greater acquirements or distinguished service. Yet without wishing to chill the zeal of our correspondent, we have good reason to know, that under no circumstances would Mr. Davis consent to be a candidate. Still Mr. Davis is free to change his determination and yield to the wishes of his friends; and then, no stronger name will be presented to the convention.

The Tar River Beacon strongly advocates the name of the Hon. T. J. Jarvis, and his many distinguished services and his admirable career in the Legislature and in the Convention ensure him an amount of consideration which well justifies the ardor of the Beacon. Mr. Jarvis would go into the convention with a formidable strength.

Of Hon. Z. B. Vance it is safe to say there has been a more general expression of preference than towards any other name to be presented. And we think it most probable that if brought before the convention, opposition to his name would be merely nominal.

Public opinion is becoming active on this question, and we have therefore merely alluded to the forms into which it begins to shape itself.

THE CONNECTICUT ELECTION.

At the time of writing, complete returns have not been received. Yet it can hardly be said that the result is in doubt. The Democrats have without doubt elected their Governor, and they have made gains in the Legislature.

The Democracy, since it has had full possession of power in Connecticut has been illustrated by superior sagacity and public virtue. It has done nothing that could work a forfeiture of the trust reposed. It has not, as in New Hampshire so shaped its policy or abused its power as to make it a matter of indifference whether Democrat or Republican administered State affairs. All its acts have been wise, sagacious and pure. And it has maintained a most laudable self respect in its relations with the representation of the State in the National Councils. It has put its best men forward to sustain the honor of the State, men elevated in intellect and incorruptible in character. And so the Democracy went into this campaign, conscious of deserving well of the people, and appealing to a record without a stain.

Connecticut, unlike New Hampshire, appears to view the ballot as something that represents principles. It is not made an open subject of a traffic without shame. Men do not stand at street corners with open palm eager for the purchase money ready to be paid for their manhood. And such results as these mean something. A Republican success might mean that the State, notwithstanding the manifold subjects of reproach, still endorses the National Administration as the safest custodian of the abstract principles of the Republican party. Democratic success would mean that the administration is thoroughly repudiated, and that Connecticut leads the way in the restoration of national honor and honesty. In this respect it would be immensely important, for the result of the late election in New Hampshire seemed to indicate that the seeds of corruption had permeated the whole mass. Under the appalling revelations of official corruption, the wide ramifications of the whiskey rings, supported and for so long concealed by the highest authorities in Washington, the lavish extravagance of the Federal City, based upon the certain robbery of a people's treasure, it might have been supposed that when the exposure was made, the first State that could speak through the ballot-box would have done so in emphatic condemnation. New Hampshire spoke, and appeared to approve, and the rogues chuckled because a new lease of life was given to their rascality. Not so has Connecticut spoken, we believe, and she will lead in the tide which will sweep away the pestilential brood which has fattened upon the substance of the people, battered off their offices, and made the nation a by-word.

Perhaps our dispatches in this paper will give full solution to the problem.

[N. Y. Herald March 20.]

WHERE IS THIS TO END.

We have tried to be on good terms with the government at Washington to do justice to the men in authority and not to be carried away by the tempest of denunciation which in our mind incessantly sways we are apt to invoke of the hands of all public men who do not happen to agree with us in politics.

But upon what theory even of fair play and respect for honest men can we explain these painful revelations about the navy department? There have been stories which we have always hesitated to believe. There seemed to be no foundation for them, and we attributed them to disappointment or revenge. But here we have evidence, official and direct from the records of the department itself—records signed by the secretary of the navy. Let us place this evidence clearly before our readers. The administration finds the financial accounts of the government in the hands of one of the great business men of the world, that of Barings—a house that had relations with our government almost since its foundation, which had always been friendly in financial dealings, which had aided us in many ways, notably during the war, when our credit was strained to the utmost, and when the most powerful resources were used to destroy our credit in the money markets of the world. To gratify a local firm in Philadelphia which had grown into sudden and unhealthy prominence during the war, and who had wildcat banking concerns of the same character in New York, whose chief spent so much time in politics that he could not attend to the little "business" that he signed, another administration transferred one of its foreign accounts, that of the state department, to the house of Barings, and the naval account to the house of Cocks. We need not say any reason for this change except that the heads of these firms were "loyal" to the Republican party and "free" from the post-traditions of the platform. "Oh, yes," were cries of the President's assistants in personal attentions and only too glad to minister to the comfort and repose of a tired civil magistrate anxious for a good time. The result of this transfer was to withdraw from our credit, at a time when we were negotiating our loans at a lower rate of interest, the strength of a great house like that of Barings, and saddle it with the weakness of mushroom houses like those of Cocks and Cocks, which, even at their best, were young and new and without financial purpose, especially in a time as uncertain as the close of a war. The troubles which all the world outside of the navy department forebode came, Jay Cooke failed on the 16th of September, 1873. Two days before Mr. Robeson, then secretary of the navy, and at that time at Long Branch, in attendance upon the President, sent a telegraphic order to the department to transfer to the London house of Cooke "one million dollars for foreign account out of the navy." The treasury two days after, hearing of the failure of the New York branch of Cooke's concern, interfered and would not send the money. Then came a dispatch from Mr. Cattell, formerly senator and a familiar of Robeson, who, in report does not wrong him, has lost much through his friendship for the secretary, and who was in London in some syndicate job, the effect of this dispatch of Cattell was to assure the secretary that public opinion showed no objection to Cooke's London concern, and that if the government did not "crush it" it would go on and do well. Instead of "crushing," Robeson, who is liberal in dealing with other folk's money, four days later—that is to say, on September 22, 1873—directed the navy to begin on the 24th THURSDAY, to pay to the London house of Cooke a half of a million of dollars. The objections of the treasury were overruled by the President, for Robeson, as a private citizen, had a right to telegraph: "I have secured the President's authority for the navy to draw for a million more to-morrow." The money was drawn. It was sent to Cooke's London concern. But even this credit could not save it. The government has to rely upon some very doubtful securities for the recovery of the advances thus made, in spite of the treasury, an avowed enemy of the navy, and the President, acting under the advice of his secretary of the navy.

How much the government will lose by this transaction we cannot say. Robeson's list of collateral is not encouraging. He has some railroad iron, a decree of court making him a creditor, and "forty-five one hundred dollar bonds of the St. Joe & Denver Railroad Company." The idea of a Secretary of the navy lending money on a wildcat security like a "St. Joe & Denver railroad" would hardly be a desirable one to the public. GEN. DIX ON CHURCH TAXATION

A Spirited Protest Against Such a Step—A Tax on the Worship of God.

In a letter in the Albany Journal General Dix says: "I was surprised and grieved to learn that the taxation of church edifices had been seriously and even earnestly advocated before the Committee of Ways and Means in the Assembly. It is virtually a proposition to impose a tax on the worship of Almighty God, unless it is rendered in the open air or in some building already subject to taxation. No one objects to the taxation of any church property devoted to secular uses. It is the imposition of taxes on houses of worship that is so objected to as a profanation of that which should be held sacred."

It is difficult to conceive that the proposition could have had its origin in any other breast than one unfriendly to all church organizations and to the predominant passion. If those who have set on foot this movement want more money, let them tax their farms, houses, game, liquor, saloons, dance-houses, clubs, theatres, diamonds, equipages—everything, in short, which ministers to their pleasures, their tastes, and their sensual indulgences. Nay, let them tax their seminaries of learning, their institutions devoted to human science, and even the grounds in which the precious bones of their ancestors repose, rather than invade with mercenary exactions the edifices devoted to the worship of Almighty God and to the teaching of our duty to Him and our neighbors.

Some of the abettors of this movement have had the magnanimity to let us understand that they are ready to compromise with the Sovereign Ruler. They will make reasonable allowance for the value of each of His churches to be exempt from taxation, and will exact of Him payment on the residue. They may, perhaps, go so far as to allow Him $2,000—as much as it would cost a well-to-do farmer to house his horses and his horned cattle. There is a degree of audacity in this concession which beggars all comment, and I distrust it. With those who think the Almighty sufficiently honored by rendering Him homage in buildings, no better than barns and out-houses, no matter how abundant the pecuniary means of the worshippers, and who attach no more sanctity to one class of those edifices than to the other, it would be equally fruitless and humbling to hold out any promise of concession. In manifold instances both in the Old and New Testaments the house of worship is called the house of God, and it is always named with appropriate expressions of reverence. The universal heart responds to this designation; and no matter how humble the edifice consecrated to His service, all men within its walls feel more sensibly that they do amid the turmoil of the outer world that they are in the presence of the Omnipotent being, by whom the great forces of the universe are moved and controlled, and that in honoring Him they renounce all hope of a higher state of existence.

The scheme should be repudiated and denounced in all its parts. One can hardly debate without a feeling of abasement. It is not a subject of human logic. It is not a problem of profit and loss, to be argued by religious obligation on one side and financial expediency on the other. It is a matter of instinct of noble reverence of the consciousness which every mind unperverted by the suggestions of worldly science, has of its own immensurable inferiority to the Sovereign Ruler of the universe and of the homage it owes Him as its creator and redeemer. There is something revolting to the moral sense in its normal state the idea of making a mercenary profit out of an edifice consecrated to His service.

It seems to me that this whole movement is calculated to create in the breast of reflecting persons a feeling of profound sorrow and unmitigated disgust. The proper mode of dealing it is to scout it out of the committee rooms, legislative halls, and social circles, and to have it defiled by its presence. To give it any countenance would be to furnish new ground for the national reproach too often cast upon us, that the eighty dollar is the chief object of our adoration.

Mississippi.

The impeachment trial of Gov. Ames of Mississippi has been brought to an unexpected end. Under an agreement with the managers of the impeachment Ames resigned his office after the articles of impeachment had been withdrawn. The resignation is of course tantamount to a confession of guilt, and the moral as well as the practical object of the proceedings has been secured. The adventurer who has been removed from the executive chair had never been a bona fide citizen of the state before he became an office-holder. But for the impeachment he would have been governor until January, 1875. His political career has come to an end, for in the present situation the republican party even Butler and Grant would find it beyond their power to indemnify this carpet-bagger with a postmastership or a consulate abroad.

The state of Mississippi has now completely passed out of radical control. This fact and the recent decision of the supreme court which deprives the radicals of the power to resort to fraud in the elections and to intimidate the whites under the pretense of protecting the colored people, foreshadow the complete overthrow of carpet-bag rule in the south. The days of radical ascendancy in Louisiana are numbered, while in South Carolina a union between the independent republicans and democrats seem to be not only possible but probable. The latter could hardly do better than endorse Gov. Chamberlain if he should be nominated, or nominate him if he should be rejected by the republican convention.

To Mississippi we expect that the victory of the democrats will be followed by a restoration of the colored people to all the political rights of citizenship is so completely accomplished that nobody will question it. A necessary consequence of this fact is that party organizations no longer have been blotted from the constitution and laws of the state. The numerical strength of the negroes makes their cooperation an indispensable condition for the preservation of good government in Mississippi.

NORTH CAROLINA.

New paper in Charlotte. Southern Home: Newspaper starting is the fashion of the day. Rumor has it that Mr. C. C. Cowles and another young man of this place will shortly start a Republican paper with a capital of $5,000, and the good will of Messrs. Harringer, Cowles, Baily, McDonald, et al.

Forgery. Asheville (The Observer): Thursday night, W. J. Cleyer, a Burke county distiller, was brought here by Deputy Marshal R. O. Patterson, and lodged in jail. Cleyer is charged with forging the signature of Jas. W. Wilson, contractor on the Swannanoa tunnel, to a distiller's bond executed May 1st, 1874, for the sum of $5,000. Yesterday the prisoner was taken before U. S. Commissioner Hildebrandt, but owing to the absence of important witnesses, was recommitted. The trial will take place to-day.

A spy fire item. Raleigh (The Observer): Sunday evening the cry of fire was heard from the Rescue, Victor, Hook and Ladder and Bucket companies with the congregations of some thirteen churches, appeared in front of Mrs. William H. Hay. They could discover was Col. Sam Buffin on the roof in a red gown and black cap pouring water on the house, which had caught fire from the spark of a Ruffin's interference spilt the fire of the firemen, and an old man declared that it was a good thing to have a man about every house.

The Patriotic mountain girls. Raleigh (The Observer): A letter from the Miss Laura Mils of this place has been authorized to solicit subscriptions from the ladies of this county for a Centennial Flag, which is to be purchased and placed in the Independence Hall in Philadelphia by the ladies of North Carolina. It is to remain in Independence Hall until the next Centennial occasion. As North Carolina is one of the original thirteen States, it is desired to have a handsome flag as possible. We hope the ladies of this county will bestir themselves and do credit to old Rutherford.

The lawyers were frightened. Charlotte (The Observer): A few days ago, a long, lank, lank-jawed countryman stepped into a law office in this city, carrying a long tin trumpet. He was invited to take a seat, taking which, he laid the horn across his lap, and bending forward with an elbow on each knee, brooked the silence for the first time. "Gentlemen," said he, "I suppose you have heard of me. My name is Gabriel. I am a lawyer, and I have come to this city to practice my profession.
